9:30 am - 11:00 am	Influencing the Future of Sciences Through Your Teaching Parité sciences is an initiative launched in 2021 that aims to achieve gender parity in physics, mathematics and computer science across the province of Quebec (www.paritiesciences.com). The heart of the project is to provide training to professors and educational counselors in CEGEPs and high schools so that they adopt strategies demonstrated by research in education as increasing the interest of women to pursue careers in these historically male dominated fields. The goal of this workshop is to present the project in the hopes that it will foster discussions and maybe even inspire other college members to build such initiatives in their provinces. I will also describe the pedagogical strategies that can just as well be applied in university courses, whether by professors or teaching assistants.	Julie Hlavacek (UMontreal)
